Ordering His Food. Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph. He went into a restaurant and looked over the room. The head waiter indicated a place, but the table did not suit him. He wanted a sent near the window, where the breezes from the outside could reach him and cool his fevered brow. When at length he was seated satisfactorily, and a waiter stood at his side ready to receive his order, the diner carefully adinsted his eyeglasses and scanned the menu with great deliberation.

That personage inclined his head gra-"You don't seem to have terrapin stew to-"No, sir." "Or canvasback duck!"

"You have no whitebart, either? "That's awkward." "We have turtle soup, sir, and clam chowder: spring chicken, Virginia style." the waiter suggested, but the diner interrupted him, with a shake of the head, and "You may bring me one cheese sandwich and a glass of water."

The waiter shook his head.

It Makes a Difference.

"Aren't you afraid of the electricity?" asked the inquisitive passenger of the "No; but the man who collects the fares "lan't it strange that he should be afraid and you not?" "Not at all. You see, I'm a nonconductor."

How to Relieve the Stringency. Pittsburg Dispatch. Pay up as long as you have anything to pay with. If you owe nothing and have money idle set it to work earning something for you in the loan market. That is the way to stop financial disturbance from
